WE learn that iron bands are to be put round the second story of the court house, as they have already been around the first. Even then it will probably "go to wrack" in a few years. We think with Squire Heaton that it ought to have been built in the mountain part of town, where an un-questificably good foundation could have been secured. In fact the entire town might with advantage to stability there. Be that as it may, the m tain part is certainly the right place other public edifices, besides the schools

The number of people who are "neither sick nor well," as the saying is, makes up a large proportion of nearly every community. If you ask what ails them you get no clear answer; for they do not know themselves. They are not sick enough to be classed with invalide, and yet they are not well. Flour. Taxes. are not sick enough to be classed with invalide, and yet they are not well enough to enjoy life or do any physical or mental work without a wear some and exhausting effort. For most of the time they teel miserable and forlors; every task is a burden; they have no sest in life, and little hope in the future. These unhappy people get little or no relief from physicians but are rather made worse by the tonics which are two aften prescribed, and which leave the vital forces at a lower runge after the temporary stimulation has subsided. What they need is a new development of force at the centre of life. If the mainspring of a watch new development of force at the centre of life. If the mainspring of a watch be too weak to drive the movement with energy, the whole machinery drope out of order, and all efforts at repair become useless. Now an agent that can restore this vital activity that can restore this vital activity must, in the very nature of things, give back health to the suffering invalid. It must act as a new and stronger mainspring would not on the machinery of the watch. That such an agent has been discovered is no longer a matter of doubt. It is to be found in what is known as "Compound Oxygen." Some of the remarkable results which have followed its use during the past twelve years will be found recorded in our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," which will be seen free, Address Drn, Stankey & Palen, 1112 Girard St. Phils, Pa.
